THE RANGE COMPLEX

LOW SIGNATURE OPERATIONS

Brilliance in the Basics ®

The Low Signature Operations, Hostile Surveillance Detection and Countermeasures Course at TRC is meticulously crafted to equip military and governmental agency personnel with the vital skills needed to navigate complex environments discreetly and safely. Specifically designed for those working in embassies, consulates, or other sensitive locations, this course emphasizes real-world applicability, immersing students in urban settings through a combination of classroom theory and intense hands-on exercises.

The training balances a 10% focus on classroom instruction with a 90% concentration on practical, hands-on exercises conducted in dynamic, realistic environments, enhanced by a multitude of trained role-players. Students engage in the intricate art of avoiding, detecting, and evading hostile surveillance, a skill paramount for successful low visibility operations.

Through a comprehensive exploration of planning and logistics in foot and vehicular surveillance, common tactics and strategies, selection of surveillance targets, and the use of counter-surveillance in operational planning, students become adept in both the theory and practice of their craft.

They learn to plan and conduct foot and vehicular surveillance, cultivate the necessary mindset for high-threat areas, apply techniques to blend in and avoid detection, and master the strategies to detect and counter hostile surveillance.

This course embodies the commitment to prepare students with a profound understanding of their mission, tailored to their unique needs, and shaped to foster continuous growth and success. It's not merely a training; it's an experience that empowers individuals to move with confidence and proficiency in the shadowy realms of their assignments.

THE RANGE COMPLEX

LOW SIGNATURE OPERATIONS, WEAPONS AND COMBATIVES

Brilliance in the Basics®

The Low Signature Operations, Weapons and Combatives/Tactical Concealed Carry course builds upon the knowledge provided in the Four Day Low Signature Operations course, but with a distinctive focus on incorporating weapons and combative techniques into low signature operations. Suited for military and governmental agency personnel, especially those serving in embassies or consulates, it's designed for those who must travel discreetly and may choose or need to do so armed.

Unlike the previous course, which concentrates on surveillance detection and evasion, this five-day intensive training dives into the integration of extreme close-quarters combatives (ECQC) with tactical pistol and carbine handling in a low signature environment. It prepares the students to disrupt an attacker, escape, or create the necessary stand-off to utilize a concealed firearm. With a special focus on the 9mm pistol and carbine, the course addresses the skills essential for navigating hostile armed encounters, whether on foot or in a vehicle. The final day's training is uniquely scenario-driven, promoting sound decision-making and the discerning use of force as required.

Participants will participate in various exercises, enhancing their proficiency in unarmed combatives, firearms safety, marksmanship, and engaging targets from various positions and situations, including moving, using cover, and around vehicles. They'll cultivate the situational awareness required in high-threat areas, operating in a manner that maintains both readiness and discretion.

In summary, while the Four Day course imparts the fundamentals of avoiding and countering surveillance, this Five Day course adds a new dimension, equipping participants with the tools and techniques to act decisively under arms. It's a progression, aligning both courses in their shared goal to fortify and empower those in complex and sensitive roles, but with different skill sets and focus areas that cater to specific operational requirements.

Through a blend of classroom instruction, range fire, and real-world scenario-based training, participants will develop the necessary skills and mindset to respond promptly and decisively. Lessons are drawn from historical active shooter events and real-world After-Action Reports (AAR), and the course emphasizes the development of site-specific response procedures.

Participants will gain insights into the combat mindset and principles of an active threat, sharpen their pistol marksmanship fundamentals, and become familiar with the terminology and structure needed to navigate a crisis. Brilliance in the Basics ®

The Combat Skills Refresher Course is exclusively tailored for military personnel. In an era where soldiers frequently operate outside their designated MOS (Military Occupational Specialty), this course serves as an essential refresher on the fundamental warrior skills required in high-threat or combat environments. Whether acting alone or in small teams, soldiers need to hone their abilities to shoot, move, communicate, and provide basic medical care.

The course provides a blend of battle drills focusing on marksmanship and movement at the individual, two-man, and team levels, yet always mindful of the challenges of contemporary combat.
